BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

The postoffice department has re-ordered the order discontinuing the postoffice at Disston, Lane county.

Leaders of the republican, democratic and progressive parties in Oregon have agreed to leave the prohibition issue out of the campaign.

Action of the postal department in rejecting tenders for carrying mails in rural sections is resented by the Coquille commercial club.

Big meeting representatives of all commercial interests in Portland and Columbia river basin was heard at Portland to unite in campaign for rivers and harbors bill.

Refund will be ordered by the Oregon railroad commission to a passenger who was made to pay more for himself and mother-in-law than for himself and wife.

There will be no delay in getting action on the deed to the locks at Oregon City, according to information given Senator Lane by Assistant Secretary Breckenridge.

Kay Carroll will be sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of John Zoller, marshal of Gervais, a jury in the circuit court having found him guilty of murder in the second degree at his third trial.

That loganberry juice, made from the Oregon loganberry, is going to take a prominent place alongside of grape juice as a beverage, is the opinion of F. A. Breck, who has organized the Breck Fruit Juice company.

Fifteen thousand boxes of peaches in the vicinity of Eugene and Junction City is the estimate placed on this crop by Dr. H. F. McCormack, field agent for the Eugene Fruitgrowers' association, who has spent a week estimating the crop.

The United States department of agriculture has set apart $11,000 for extension work in agriculture and home economics in Oregon during the next year. This amount may be increased to $15,000. This allowance is in addition to the $10,000 appropriated to Oregon under the Smith-Lever bill.

According to census reports received by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Churchill the school population of Tillamook, Harney, Coos, Yamhill, Willamette, Baker and Clatsop counties increased during the year while in Hood River and Wasco counties it slightly decreased.

Nearly a score of those who were nominated at the May primary have failed to file their expense accounts with Secretary of State Olcott, and he has sent notice to all of them that their names will not appear on the ballot until they furnish a statement of their expenses.

The drought of the last six weeks seriously affected the pear crop in the Rogue river valley. Picking probably will begin next week. Experts who have looked over the valley fear there will not be more than 60 per cent of the 1913 harvest. The crop is estimated at 400 cars.

That Willamette valley products will be well represented at the Panama-Pacific exposition was assured at a meeting of the Willamette Valley Exposition association at Salem. Members reported that much headway had been made in their sections toward obtaining exhibits and that the people were deeply interested in making the best showing possible.

Auto streetcars, the first to be installed in the west, are to be in operation in Pendleton before the opening of the Roundup. Two 25-passenger cars already have been ordered and are now being built in Portland. When received they will run on regular schedule about the city and to the eastern Oregon hospital for the insane. Streetcar rates will be charged.

Ezra Meeker, of Puyallup, Wash., pioneer of 1852, who has twice crossed the plains by ox team, recently retracing the "Oregon trail," shipped his ox and prairie schooner from Springfield to San Francisco. Mr. Meeker also departed to take a position under the Washington state commission at the Panama exposition. He is to exhibit his outfit throughout the fair and assist in the publicity work.

Figures prepared by Corporation Commissioner Watson for his annual report and just made public show that his department is the greatest revenue producing arm of the state government. The department was started June 3, 1913, and from that time until May 31, 1914, the receipts totaled $221,149.66. From June 1 to June 30, inclusive, the receipts were $89,463.45, making a grand total of receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, $310,613.09.

Forest rangers on the Umatilla forest are engaged in erecting a 65-foot "fire tower" on the top of Lookout mountain, one of the highest peaks in the forest. Owing to the fact that only the raw material to be found in the forest was available for building the tower, its construction was a difficult task. It is nearing completion, however, and will be equipped with a powerful glass and "fire finder." A man will be on duty constantly and with the aid of the equipment at his command will be able to locate every fire within a radius of 75 miles, almost as soon as it is started.
